

To whom it may concern:

The "do not call list" is a minimal but essential guarantee that consumers retain the right to deny the disturbance of telemarketers in their own homes. I know it won't be long before the data collaters overrun our privacy, but this protection is convenient at least. Give us a break!